Despite your efforts to block or route calls through to voicemail, you find yourself answering the phone to annoying sales pitches or other unwanted phone calls. It's a nuisance. But you'll be glad you have this app on your phone. It blocks your phone from being called by someone you don't want to talk to. I like to call it "The Anti-Phone Lifter." This program has built-in safeguards to block phone calls by phone numbers it has stored in a list. If the number you want to call is on the list, the app will not allow it. If it detects a call being made to a number on the list, it will allow the call to proceed, but give a prompt that the call is being blocked. I use it for business numbers as well as to block calls from number scanners. It has become a convenient solution for when I don't want to answer a call and don't want to waste my battery. They don't bother me, but when they do, I'll never make it back to the number if they block me out. That alone would keep me from using a program like CallBlocker 3.0. I use call block for incoming calls and also for outgoing calls I use a voip application where incoming and outgoing calls come in voip and for outgoing I use a normal telephone so I need to log out and in the call block app it can easily log me out and into the callblock app when I need.[Right ventricular volume and pressure monitoring in the diagnosis and treatment of pulmonary hypertension (author's transl)].
